Powder Springs Mayor Cleared of Alleged Assault

A woman told police Pat Vaughn hit her on the back with a door knob in March at the mayor's business office.

Editor's Note: Since this report was published, Patch received the audio referenced below. You can listen to it here.

Powder Springs Mayor Pat Vaughn has been cleared by police of an alleged assault after a woman said the mayor hit her with a door knob as she was shutting a door.

The mayor called the complaint "fabricated."

"It is unfortunate that a person may simply make a complaint without any basis whatsoever, but that is what happened in this instance," Vaughn said. "I wish the best for this troubled young woman, but I hope she will think twice before making such an unfounded claim again."

The complainant, 43-year-old Leesa Jean Raaum, said that, at the advice of her attorney, she couldn't immediately comment but would soon.

Raaum made the complaint to Powder Springs police on April 1, 12 days after the alleged incident on March 20. Raaum told police she was hesitant because of Vaughn's position with the city and with Country Walk, the subdivision they both live in.

Vaughn's property management business, Neighborhood Management Services, manages the neighborhood.

At the advice of her attorney, Raaum filed a police report, records show. Powder Springs police passed the case along to Cobb police because it involved a city employee—just as they did with the investigation into the Brice Wilson traffic stop, Chief Charlie Sewell said.

"It takes out the ... perceived conflict of interest," Sewell told Patch. "We have a very good working relationship with Cobb County, and if we need to contact Cobb County or any other agency to assist us with something like that, we would certainly do so."

Cobb police Detective C.R. Twiggs handled the case.

Raaum went to the Neighborhood Management Services office on the Town Square about 2:30 p.m. on March 20 to pay a homeowner's association bill and to discuss association matters with Vaughn, according to Cobb police records.

Also at the office was an employee of Vaughn's business, Diane Macavage, and two members of County Walk's Board of Directors, Ann Taylor and Billie Williams. The board members later told police they were present because of past experiences with Raaum, whose visit was expected.

Macavage told police that Raaum “was the reason that they kept their office door locked,” records say.

After giving Macavage a check, Raaum told police she began discussing a letter she received about a missing key. Vaughn then came out to discuss the matter.

Raaum said Vaughn attempted to get her to come into her office to talk, but she didn’t want to without her husband present. Vaughn then called Taylor and Williams into the room, Raaum said.

“The conversations between Ms. Raaum and Ms. Vaughn became heated, and Ms. Vaughn told Ms. Raaum that she would never be allowed back into the office again,” according to Raaum’s initial report with police. “Ms. Vaughn then forced Ms. Raaum out of the office by pushing her with her hand; as Ms. Raaum was walking out of the office, Ms. Vaughn slammed the office door behind Ms. Raaum, striking her in the back.”

Attached is a picture Raaum gave to police of the bruise that was allegedly caused by the door.

Raaum also made an audio recording of the incident with her cell phone. Through Georgia open records, Patch received a CD from Cobb police of the recording, but the file couldn’t be played. Patch will publish the recording when it becomes available.

The recording is consistent with the verbal accounts from everyone present, police records say. “At the conclusion of the recording, Vaughn is heard telling Raaum to not come back to the office and ‘out you go.’ A door is heard closing, and Raaum states, ‘Oh my God.’

“However, the recording cannot indicate the physical actions of the persons involved.”

At the office of Vaughn’s attorney, former Georgia Gov. Roy Barnes, she told police that no physical contact was made, but she did go to the door after Raaum left to make sure she had left the building.

Raaum had fallen at her own house, and an ambulance had been dispatched, Barnes and Vaughn gave as a possible explanation of the bruise.

The three other witnesses also said there was no contact made.

“In an interview with Raaum,” records say, “she, herself, described the contact in a manner that did not meet a crime.”

Because of that, plus the disputing accounts from the witnesses and Raaum, Vaughn was “exceptionally cleared” of the alleged crime, records show.

Raaum told police she is considering a civil case.

I honestly doubt a woman that lives in the same neighborhood is going to fabricate such a story and have photographs to back it up! The recording is consistent? And Pat Vaughn is saying "You will never come back and OUT you go?" Mayor Vaughn is a bully. I hope Ms. Raaum pursues the civil case and stops this wolf in sheeps clothing once and for all!

Ms. Trump, did you look at the photo? It’s of her hip. A back injury would NOT be located near Ms. Raaum’s buttocks. A back injury would be more towards the center, not towards the right side of Ms. Raaum’s body. Also, if one were to do an open records request, as I have, one would see that Ms. Raaum claimed it hit her shoulder. Once again, a shoulder injury would NOT be near Ms. Raaum’s hip. Do your research and you’d see that Mayor Vaughn is actually the wronged party here.

Really, did you read this article – Mrs. Raaum herself described the contact in a manner that did not meet a crime. There were four persons in the office when Mrs. Raaum came into pay the bill and it sounds to me like all of them gave the police the same story. It would be difficult to have the stories match up exactly if it were not the truth. Don't you think it's a little strange that it took her 12 days to go to the police with the matter? If something really happened and she was really injured, one would think it would be reported immediately. Just the fact that Mrs. Raaum went to the office to pay a bill and made an audio recording of her conversation with the persons in the office tells me that this was a set up! She must be a very troubled woman.

Oh pleeezzz, more drama - your imagination has gone wild. Get a life! Of course if you are still worried you can call in Eric Holder to investigate.

Bill RossDelete11:25 am on Saturday, May 5, 2012

@Phaedra- no one, including the police officer writing the report, said anything about an injury to the shoulder. Why even mention a shoulder injury? Are you implying that the injury location has changed? From what I've read, it's always been the right flank area. Furthermore, Mayor Vaughn seems to be the "wronged party" on many occasions, and that alone seems suspicious. I guess everyone is just out to get her. She never does anything to contribute to the situations she gets in to. Is that what you are tryingj to make us believe? I'm sorry, I don't agree and I can assure you that I'm not the only one.

@Powder Springs Resident - it might be true that the way Ms. Raaum described the event was not in a way that met the standards required to press criminal charges at thatg time, but that is because she didn't lie or feel the need to embellish. Proving this occurred in criminal court is much different than proving the same case in civil court. Key words are "more likely than not". After hearing the recording, will the jury think it's more likely that Vaughn was right in her face and opened the door insisting that Ms. Raaum leave and then slammed it before she had a chance to get all the way out, or will they think Vaughn was across the room behind the desk as she stated? I guess we will all find out soon enough. Also, notifying Eric Holder would be appropriate . Not because of this incident but because of other questionable activities for which Vaughn is involved.

Bill RossDelete12:21 pm on Saturday, May 5, 2012

I'm sure Ms. Raaum was frightened to go to the police department to file the complaint about Ms.Vaughn's actions that day. I'm sure she had to hire an attorney to seek advice on what steps she needed to take. As mentioned in the article, not only do they live in the same neighborhood, Vaughn's company currently manages the neighborhood. She is also the mayor and I'm sure that alone makes it even more intimidating. As far as the bruise, did it occur to you that the photo could have been taken shortly after the event and not TWELVE days later??

@Fraulein - you have made a very good point! They are watching and if someone dare say something in support of Ms. Raaum or even agree that there is a huge problem in Country Walk, they will be in big trouble! The worst part is that there is nothing they can do about it. If one becomes the target, it's there forever and they had better watch out! The board doesn't stand up for the homeowner's rights.... if Vaughn says so, it is so.

Jillian TrumpDelete11:15 am on Monday, April 23, 2012

Ms. Sydney, please tell me your position in order to get public records between 5:58 am and 9:33 am - when you posted your comments. And if you have a copy of the record, by all means, please share them, as I would LOVE to see them as would the rest of the patch I'm sure!

The photograph clearly shows a back/hip area, how could a door knob hit a shoulder? Do you know the exact angle in which the photograph is taken? I think it's rather obvious it's not a shoulder and it appears incredibly dark & painful. What kind of person does this?

Must I remind you, we've only heard one side of the story here - the comments of the alledged assailant. We haven't had the opportunity to hear the victim, Ms. Raaum's side. I don't think a woman residing in the same neighborhood is going to make this kind of accusation, especially against a political figure, and it not be the truth. Think about it.

Ms. Trump, I do not have to post the records on Patch as Patch has not asked me for them. Besides, Patch has their own copy. I requested my own copy of the records before the story broke, when my contacts in the media, whom I am not going to disclose either, told me that Patch had requested the records. Why don't you ask Patch to post their copy of the police report? They've had the records for quite some time and just posted the story after a homeowner's meeting that occurred yesterday? Doesn't that seem a little fishy to you? Also, you have direct quotes in the story from one of the witnesses who was there when the alleged assault happened. I reckon that three witnesses wouldn't lie to cover up something. Witness accounts may vary from time to time, but in this case it doesn't seem the witness accounts varied at all. Madam, I suggest you ask patch to post the records and see what the records themselves say. Must I remind you that any part of the body can be hit by a doorknob depending on how a person is standing? If Ms. Raaum was "pushed" out of the door by Mayor Vaughn, Ms. Raaum would have logically landed on her knees, thus if the door closed when she was trying to stand up, she would have been hit in the shoulder. This sounds like a case of slander and false accusations. I can't wait to see the results of this case.

Ms. Sydney, I don't recall Ms. Raaum ever stating that she was "pushed" out the door, but that she was hit with the slamming door as she was crossing the threshold. The "logic" you use in your statement is nothing short of comical. Getting hit, falling to her knees, and being hit by the door as she was trying to stand up.... While you weren't present to witness what happened personally, you sure seem to have put a lot of thought into the way you think it happened. It's also interesting that all witness statements match exactly. I have to wonder how long they rehearsed what to say? Making a statement during an investigation is different than testifying in court. It will be interesting to see if the "stories" stay the same when they have to swear to tell the truth on a Bible!! Furthermore, impeding an investigation is a crime.

Hmmm....Vaughn says an ambulance was dispatched? I found NO such record! Just another example of abuse of power by an elected official. Residents of Country Walk, why do you continue to pay this woman to "manage" our community and pay her DOUBLE the going rate for such services, then stand by when she man-handles a resident who had the "audacity" to question unwarranted fines levied against her? I think this incident may be just the tip of the iceberg.

Reply

Powder Springs ResidentDelete1:57 pm on Monday, April 23, 2012

Betty, You say Country Walk is “our community”, don’t you live in Tennessee?
 Where is the “abuse of power by an elected official?” Was this a City incident? Ms. Raaum herself described the contact in a manner that did not meet a crime – She was not man-handled!
 Nice try at trying to protect your daughter, obviously the apple doesn’t fall far from the tree.

Bill RossDelete2:30 pm on Saturday, May 5, 2012

Betty, the ambulance comment was just another distraction technique that we, as Powder Springs’ residents and Country Walk homeowners, have seen time after time! Of course there was no ambulance. Amazing that they chose this example as a reason for the bruise since it can be very easy to prove that there wasn’t one dispatched. Also, maybe the photo was taken a day or two after the assault?

@Powder Springs Resident - I find it interesting that you were able to identify Betty as Ms. Raaum's mother. What source did you use to confirm this? Facebook, private NMS homeowner files, or private pool checker employment applications? One thing I can say for her is she wasn't afraid to use her real name rather than a lame, fake moniker. Your comment certainly narrows down who you REALLY are. "The apple doesn't fall from the tree"? What exactly do you mean by that?

Just so you know, this situation does involve the city because it happened within city limits during Vaughn's work day while she should be working on city business and not instigating situations with constituents. If you're going to ask a question, a better one might be "what did this have to do with the annual home owners meeting at Country Walk?" It certainly wasn't on the agenda. Obviously, Ms. Vaughn told her story to slant homeowner's thoughts about what happened.

Jillian TrumpDelete12:34 pm on Monday, April 23, 2012

Jillian- you aren't the only one who believes it's senseless.

doorknobs 'n' broomsticksDelete12:34 pm on Monday, April 23, 2012

There is certainly a lot of history behind this incident, more than what many of you know at this point. It's ludicrous that a 40 year old woman was so horribly "assaulted" by our Mayor who may be 20 yrs her senior while three others stood by and let it happen. Mrs. Raum COULD have sent her payment through the mail, she did NOT have to go directly to the office to do this. I have known our Mayor for over 10 yrs and cannot fathom that she would strike ANYONE. This just goes to show you, any of us could be accused of anything so the next time any of you are handling a door, be sure to check the immediate area so that you don't "assault" another citizen with a door knob.

ReplyTERESA SMITHDelete7:12 pm on Monday, April 23, 2012

I would think if a courteous person is closing the door as another citizen leaves you would know if it hit them. If you are slamming a door as someone walks out you wouldn't really know. So yes check the area that the person has walked away before slamming the door or after you say goodbye close the door as they walk away. Common courtesy is a good thing.

Bill RossDelete3:32 pm on Saturday, May 5, 2012

To purposely "strike" someone and to SLAM the door into them out of anger are two completely separate things. If you have known the mayor for 10 years like you say you have, you know that she has a temper and she tends get very angry when something doesn't go the way she planned for it to go. Ms. Raaum refused to go into her office and that infuriated her. Regarding the age of Vaughn, Ann Taylor and Billie Williams, it sounds like what occurred happened very quickly and at the end. According to Ms. Raaum, Taylor and Williams weren't in the room (we'll know more about that when they swear on a Bible about what they saw and where they were). It doesn't take a person with super strength to slam the door into someone. Additionally, Diane Macavage was quoted as saying that the reason they leave the office door locked is because of Ms. Raaum. March 20th was only the second time she had ever even been in that office. Any homeowner who has visited the NMS office is aware that the door is locked AT ALL TIMES! There are plenty of people who will testify to that. Besides, if they were so "frightened", why didn't they call the police? or not answer the door? OR keep her there for 7 minutes?

TERESA SMITHDelete12:52 pm on Monday, April 23, 2012

It just wonder why everytime the mayor is in the news about any issue , she comes out smelling like a rose. But if you ever contact her about anything , you never get a response. Local politics, don't you love it. Let's raise some property taxes, maybe we can get someone to pick up the litter in the downtown area.

Mr. Stone,

I wish you would publish the police report. Not the disk with the recording that was taken, probably without being announced that the meeting was being recorded, but the actual police report published by the CCPD. And I must agree with Jim, it seems like all you do is try to foster controversy and turmoil. Let's have honest, good reporting without a bias for once. Publish the police report.

JIM Galluzzo, I hope you're prepared to prove that you know Ms. Raaum and you aren't simply regurgitating what someone else has lied about. You couldn't possibly expect that saying something like "when she's coherent" is okay if you don't know her.

Mr. Stone- I wish you would publish the "disk" because Ms. Raaum was perfectly within her rights to make the recording to protect herself. Let's get down to what really happened. I'm sure if Ms. Vaughn was across the room as she claimed, and wasn't anywhere near the door when Ms. Raaum walked out, everyone will be able to tell. As someone who knows both parties, neither Raaum nor Vaughn are credible by any sense of the word. What the story omits is that the two HOA board members present are personal friends of Vaughn. So the witnesses are the alleged assailant, an employee of hers, and two friends. CCPD may have figured they had nothing believable on either side and could not pursue.

ReplyTERESA SMITH6:19 pm on Monday, April 23, 2012

This seems like misuse of a public forum. Just to have a battle between two people. So sad!!! Law suits threatened, let's be real. From what I am reading there seems to be a long standing disagreement between these two women, and from what I read on this site and others, the whole matter could have been handled more maturily than it was on both parts. But as a servant to the community and a paid politician of our city, Mrs. Vaughan should have set an example. But just as other issues in the city that she has been involved in there has been no accountability. I think if the citizens in Powder Springs were not so disheartened by all the garabage that goes on more people would have turned out for the mayor election and we would have another person as mayor.

Fräulein what on earth are you talking about? Please explain.ReplyCountry Walk Powder SpringsDelete9:24 pm on Thursday, April 26, 2012

Well will you look at this! Country Walk board members and NMS employees doing what they do best! BULLYING HOMEOWNERS! Since you all are so proud to come together and defame homeowners in your neighborhood, you will be glad to know that this is now a searchable document so that all potential home buyers can see what they would be in for. Come on! Doesn't Country Walk have a bad enough reputation already? P.S... Fictitious names and/or email addresses don't equal fictitious I.P. addresses...JUST SAYIN!!

Take note! The reason there are no new comments/answers on this page in the past few days is NOT because it's not being read!! I can assure you that the mayor and every board member in Country Walk are checking this article for new posts every day and would love to make comments. Someone has advised them to say nothing.

This is very entertaining. Mr. Stone, you shouldn't be getting critized for anything, I enjoy the patch, and I've enjoyed reading all this, He said, she said, they said, garbage..Its awesome! It's typical of a Southern Town with too many hormones!! The video sounds like two women having a conversation, it doesn't sound like anyone is even mad, or at least it doesn't sound like me if I'm mad, I raise my voice, and my emotions get really out there, I don't hear that at all...This is great movie content, just a few more incidents in Powder Town, and this will be a great feature at the box office, that could bring in some tax dollars to the city, maybe then we can catch the THUGS, DRUG DEALERS and etc..that the P.S. police can't seem to catch, but we witness STILL at the local business' parking lots around the city--basically, this is all pathetic, Two women that can't get along, can't live in the same neighborhood and then they "air" their dislikes over the Patch, along with their "buddies" taking sides..(giggle, smile) but we'll read on, as long as they post..Thanks!
